Boy Killed By Rifle

MONTREAL, Mar. 27.—One boy was killed outright and two men were injured, one of whom may die, when a rifle in the hands of Arthur Hotte was accidentally discharged this afternoon at St. Martin village, near Carterville. The victims were watching Hotte and some other men shooting at a tin can on a fence. Hotte's brother Napoleon had attempted to take the gun from his brother when it went off, the bullet narrowly missing him. It struck Leopold Valquette, aged eleven, in the heart, came out through his shoulder and passed through the arm of Felix Dumont and finally lodged itself in the forehead of Ferdinand Gravel, 48, St. Dorothée. The boy died almost instantly and Gravel was conveyed to Notre Dame Hospital where his recovery is considered doubtful. Dumont's condition is not serious.

NORTH SYDNEY, March 28.—The Reid Nfld. Co. steamer "Kyle" arrived this afternoon here on the first trip to this port since January. She left Port aux Basques at five o'clock yesterday afternoon and was delayed by having to go through a considerable field of ice in the Cabot Strait as well as encountering fog. There is only little scattered ice off this port and once the ice is clear in the Strait the Kyle has no difficulty in making North Sydney.

SOUTHPORT, Eng., March 28.—The Independent Labor Party in conference here to-day rejected an overwhelming majority the proposal to accept Lenin's twenty-one conditions for affiliation with the third international of Moscow. The minority report favored the acceptance and this element may secede.

NEW YORK, March 28.—An eighty mile gale swooping down on New York late this afternoon tore off roofs, uprooted trees, caused accidents which have resulted in at least two deaths and brought a touch of real winter. The wind was accompanied by a drop in the temperature of forty degrees. The weather bureau declared the gale to be mostly local in character and caused by the heat of yesterday and this morning by part of a general storm in the East.

MONCTON, March 28.—Only exceptionally fine work of the local fire department prevented wholesale conflagration this morning when a combined warehouse and machine shop of the Record Foundry and Machine Company was completely destroyed by fire. With a strong gale blowing, the huge warehouse was in a few minutes a raging furnace and with showers of sparks and blazing embers driven thru the air in a northeasterly direction wooden buildings within several blocks were in jeopardy. The property loss is seventy-five thousand.

DUBLIN, March 28.—Fifth anniversary of Easter rising passed to-day without serious incidents and although outrages have not ceased throughout the country there was a noticeable absence of murders and ambushes during the holidays. Residents of Kingstown were alarmed late last night by firing and bomb explosions and by reports of an attack on Kingstown naval base. An official communique says that at eleven o'clock at night military guards at Kingstown were attacked from three different points simultaneously. There were sharp firing and the attacking parties were dispersed without inflicting damage.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 28.—The town of Kutsia has been evacuated by Turks, and Greeks are now masters of Bagdad Railway, and are continuing to advance toward Angora. CHAPTER LV.

"War To The Knife."

LUCILA, Countess of Lanswell was in terrible trouble, and it was the first real trouble of her life. Her son's marriage had been rather a difficulty than a trouble—a difficulty that the law had helped her over. Now no law could intervene, and no justice. Nothing could exceed her surprise in finding Madame Vanira, the Queen of Song, the most beautiful, the most gifted woman in England, positively the "dairy-maid," "the tempestuous young person," the artful, designing girl from whom by an appeal to the strong arm of the law she had saved her son. She paused in wonder to think to herself what would have happened if the marriage had not been declared null and void. In that case, she said to herself, with a shrug of the shoulders, in all probability the girl would not have taken to the stage at all. She wondered that she had not sooner recognized her. She remembered the strong, dramatic passion with which Leone had threatened her. "She was born an actress," said my lady to herself, with a sneer. She determined within herself the secret should be kept, that to no one living would she reveal the fact that the great actress was the girl whom the law had parted from her son.

Lord Chandos, the Duke of Lester, the world in general must never know this, Lord Chandos must never tell it, neither would she. What was she to do? A terrible incident had happened—terrible to her on whose life no shadow rested. Madame Vanira had accepted an engagement at Berlin, the fashionable journals had already announced the time of her departure and bemoaned the loss of so much beauty and genius. Lord Chandos had announced his intention of spending a few months in Berlin, and his wife would not agree to it.

"You know very well," she said, "that you have but one motive in going to Berlin, and that is to be near Madame Vanira."

"You have no right to pry into my motives," he replied, angrily; and she retorted that when a husband's motives lowered his wife, she had every reason to inquire into them.

Hot, bitter, angry words passed between them. Lord Chandos declared that it pleased him to go to Berlin; he should go; it mattered little whether his wife went or not; and Lady Chandos, on her side, declared that nothing should ever induce her to go to Berlin. The result was just what one might have anticipated—a violent quarrel. Lady Chandos threatened to appeal to the duke. Her husband laughed at the notion.

"The duke is a great statesman and a clever man," he replied; "but he has no power over me. If he interfered with any arrangement, in all probability we should not meet again."

"I will appeal to him," cried Lady Marion; "he is the only friend I have in the world."

The ring of passionate pain in her voice startled him; a sense of pity came over him. After all, this fair, angry woman was his wife, whom he was bound to protect.

"Marion, be reasonable," he said. "You go the wrong way to work; even supposing I did care for some one else, you do not go the way to make me care for you; but you are mistaken. Cease all these disagreeable recriminations, and I will be the kindest of husbands and the best of friends to you. I have no wish, believe me, Marion, to be anything else."

Even then she might have become reconciled to him, and the sad after-consequences had been averted, but she was too angry, too excited with jealousy and despair.

"Will you give up Madame Vanira?" she said, and husband and wife looked fixedly at each other.

"You say you will be a loving husband and a true friend; prove it by doing this—prove it by giving up Madame Vanira."

Lord Chandos was silent for a few minutes; then he said:

"I cannot, for this reason: Madame Vanira, as I happen to know, has had great troubles in her life, but she is thoroughly good. I repeat it, Marion, thoroughly good. Now, if I, as you phrase it, 'give her up,' it would be confessing that I had done wrong. My friendship is some little comfort to her, and she likes me. What harm is there in it? Above all, what does it inflict on you—Answer me. Has my friendship for Madame Vanira made me less kind, less thoughtful for you?"

No answer came from the white lips of the trembling wife.

He went on:

"Why should you be foolish or narrow-minded? Why seek to end a friendship pure and innocent? Why not be your noble self, Marion—noble as I have always thought you? I will tell you frankly, Madame Vanira is going to Berlin. You know how lonely it is to go to a fresh place. She happened to say how desolate she should feel at first in Berlin. I remarked that I knew the city well, and then she wished we were going. I pledge you my honor that she said 'we.' Never dreaming that you would make any opposition," I said that I should be very glad to spend the next few months in Berlin. I can not tell how it really was, but I found that it was all settled and arranged almost before I knew it. Now you would not surely wish me to draw back? Come with me to Berlin, and I will show you how happy I will make you."

"No," she replied; "I will share your heart with no one. Unless I have all I will have none. I will not go to Berlin, and you must give up Madame Vanira," she continued; "Lance, you cannot hesitate, you must see your duty; a married woman must see her duty. Why should you spend long hours and whole days tete-a-tete with a stranger? Of what can you find to speak? You know in your heart that you are wrong. You say no. Now in the name of the common sense and fairness, let me ask, would you like me to make of any man you know such a friend as you have made of Madame Vanira?"

"That is quite another thing," he replied.

Lady Chandos laughed, sadly. "The usual refuge of a man when he is brought to bay," she said. "No words, no arguments will be of any use to me, I shall never be really friends with you until you give up Madame Vanira."

"Then we will remain enemies," he replied. "I will never give up a true friend for a caprice of any woman," he replied, "even though that woman be my wife."

"Neither will I consent to go to Berlin," she answered, gravely.

"Then I must go alone," he said; "I will not be governed by caprices that have in them neither reason nor sense."

"Then," cried Lady Marion, "it is war to the knife between us!"

"War, if you will," said Lord Chandos; "but always remember you can put an end to the warfare when you will!"

"I shall appeal to Lady Lanswell and to the Duke of Lester," said Lady Marion, and her husband merely answered with a frown.

With them it was indeed "war to the knife." Such was the Gordian knot that Lady Lanswell had to untie, and it was the most difficult task of her life.

On the same evening when that conversation took place, Lord Chandos went to the opera, where Leone was playing "Anne Boleyn." He waited until she came out and was seated in her carriage; then he stood for a few moments leaning over the carriage door and talking to her.

"How you tremble," he said. "Your face is white and your eyes are all fire!"

"The spell is still on me," she answered. "When I have thrown my whole soul into anything, I lose my own identity for many hours. I wish," she continued, "that I did not so thoroughly enter into those characters. I hardly realize this moment whether I am Anne Boleyn, the unhappy wife of bluff King Hal, or whether I am Leone, the singer."

"I know which you are," he said, his eyes seeking hers with a wistful look. "All King Hal's wives put together are not worth your little finger, Leone. See how the stars are shining. I have something to say to you. May I drive with you as far as Highgate Hill?"

The beautiful face, all pale with passion, looking into his.

"It is against our compact," she said; "but you may if you wish."

The silent stars looked down in pity as he took his place by her side.

"Leone," he said, "I want to ask you something. A crisis is come in our lives; my wife, who was told about that day on the river, has asked me to give up your acquaintance."

A low cry came from the beautiful lips, and face of the fairest woman in England grew deadly pale.

"To give me up," she murmured; "and you, Lord Chandos, what have you said?"

"I said 'No,' a thousand times over. Leone, our friendship is a good and pure one; I would not give it up for any caprice in the world."

A great tearless sob came from her pale lips.

"God bless you a thousand times!" she said. "So you would not give me up, and you told them so?"

Take It In Time!

Do you know that by far the larger number of the common ailments of women are not surgical ones; that is they are not caused by any serious displacement, tumor, growth, or other marked change?

Do you know that these common ailments produce symptoms that are very much like those caused by the more serious surgical conditions?

Do you know that many women and young girls suffer needlessly from such ailments? More than that, they endanger their health by allowing their ailments to continue and develop into something serious.

If treated early, that is, within a reasonable time after the first warning symptoms appear, serious conditions may often be averted. Therefore, at the first appearance of such symptoms as periodic pains, irregularities, irritability and nervousness, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken. It is prepared with accuracy and cleanliness from medicinal plants. It contains no narcotics nor poisonous drugs, and can be taken with perfect safety.

The Vegetable Compound acts on the conditions which bring about these symptoms in a gentle and efficient manner. The persistent use of it shows itself in the disappearance, one after another, of the disagreeable symptoms. In a word, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound acts as a natural restorative, relieving the present distress and preventing more serious trouble.

Why not give a fair trial to this medicine

"Yes; I refused to do anything of the kind," he replied, "why should I, Leone? They parted us once by stratagem; by intrigue, by working on all that was weakest in my character; now we are but friends, simply honest friends; who shall part us?"

She clasped his hand for an instant in her own.

"No, I will die first, Leone. There is one thing more I have to say. I said that I would go to Berlin, and I have asked my wife to go with me; she has refused, and I have said that I would go alone. Tell me what you think?"

"I cannot—I think nothing; perhaps—oh, Heaven help me!—perhaps as your wife has told you she will not go with you, your duty is to stay with her."

"My duty," he repeated; "who shall say what a man's duty is? Do you think I have no duty toward you?"

"Your first thought should be—must be—your wife. If she would have countenanced our friendship, it would have been our greatest pride and pleasure; if she opposes it, we must yield. She has the first right of your time. After all, Lance, what can it matter? We shall have to part; what can it matter whether it is now or in three months to come? The more we see of each other the harder it will be."

A flush as of fire came over his face.

"Why must we part?" he cried. "Oh, Heaven, what price I pay for my folly!"

"Here is Highgate Hill," said Leone.

one: "you go no further, Lord Chandos."

Only the silent stars were looking on; he stood for a few minutes at the carriage door.

"Shall I go to Berlin?" he whispered as he left her, and her answer was a low sad:

"Yes."

WEST COAST FISHERY

The Board of Trade received the following fishery report yesterday from Sub-Collector Furneaux at Rose Blanche:

"Total qtls. landed to date 5140; total for last week 250. Weather for the past three weeks has been stormy and very frosty, practically no fishing done during that time by many of the shore boats, but the schooners have been out several days and have not done much on account of being so frosty. The whole of the fishing grounds were covered with what is called young ice, that is ice frozen during the previous night, and too hard for the dories to row through to set their trawls. The drift ice kept only a few miles off shore for some time, and the last day our shore boats were out, they got only a few small fish each. The drift ice has been over the fishing grounds and the fish have taken a sheer to the eastern banks, and many are of the opinion there will not be much more done until the middle of April. One of the schooners, the Catherine B. Rose, Master, belonging to Hermitage, is the first to start for home, he hauls for 450 qtls. for 5 dories, which is good, or better than any other schooner. The other schooners are hauling for from 400 qtls. to 700 qtls."

A PROVERB

BY WALTER WELLMAN

There are several missing words in the sentences on the blackboard. If you will replace the words, you will have a well known proverb as the result. The missing words, in order, form the proverb.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle: TAKE AREA REAR EARS

FIX STOMACH RIGHT UP

"Pape's Diapepsin" at once ends Indigestion, Gases, Sourness, Acidity

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable. You mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

When your meals don't fit and you feel uncomfortable, when you belch gases, acids or raise sour, undigested food. When you feel lumps of indigestion pain, heartburn or headache, from acidity, just eat a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the stomach distress is gone.

Millions of people know the magic of Pape's Diapepsin as an antacid. They know that indigestion and disordered stomach are so needless. The relief comes quickly, no disappointment, and they cost so little too.

CAPE ISLAND MOURNS.

Alfred Andrews Falls Through Ice And Is Drowned

Relatives and Friends Are Heart Broken

(To the Editor.)

Dear Sir,—Please permit me space in your most valuable paper again to make a few brief remarks concerning a sad accident that happened at Cape Island. On Feb. 21st a dark cloud passed over it. A young man, Alfred Andrews, full of life and vigor left his home about 1 o'clock in the evening with his gun to hunt for birds. The wind was easterly in the morning, fine and warm, but after a while it began to snow and the wind veered westerly and it began to get cold and before dark it was rough and freezing very hard. But in spite of the snow and cold this young man went over on the back of Cobbler's Island a few hundred yards from his home. And over there, Mr. Editor, as we may see some times, there was water around the rocks, a very good place for birds. So poor Alfred ventured out there about two or three hundred yards from the island. He got to the rock safely not thinking it was going to be his last time there, and coming from the rock he went in a different direction from where he got off to. And as you may see dear reader, there was a weak place in the ice; it was covered over with snow and this poor fellow thinking it was all alike walked into it and sank to rise no more. Alfred was a man to be known by many people and no doubt the blow was felt very keenly by all who knew him. That evening Cape Island was in an uproar, every one with eager eyes watching for his return, but all in vain. His brother, Noah and I went up to a place we call Shoal Arm, as someone told him that there were some birds up there, thinking he might be up there. But to our sorrow we saw nothing of him and with sad hearts we walked home. The mother was broken hearted for her boy whom she loved, and his uncle and aunt whom he was living with were bowed down with sorrow and grief. The next day we started to look for him out around the rocks and over back of Cobbler's Island. All the morning we were looking for the body but never saw any thing of him. Thinking it was in vain, all returned home to get something to eat, and after dinner we all went over again. So John Vincent and George, his son being the first over there, walked right to where poor Alfred fell through and was drowned. So with axes, Mr. Editor, we all went to work chopping holes through the ice and the first thing we saw was the poor fellow's gun. After a while we saw the body lying still and cold in death. Ah Mr. Editor, what sorrow and sadness fell on the hearts of all those that were standing around to see how suddenly this young man was torn from our embrace. Poor Alfred was almost to land when he fell through and was drowned. Only God knows how hard it is to those whom he left behind. The mother's heart is almost breaking for her boy whom she loved and who went in such a way. Now, dear readers, we are all travelling to the grave. Sooner or later we all have to meet our God; it is a great thing to be ready when death comes. We know not the moment when it is coming to call us from this earth. Little did dear Alfred think when he went away from his home that evening that he would never see his loved ones on earth again. Danger stands thick through all the ground to push us to the tomb. Our life is but a vapour which appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth away. Dear reader, God is waking us every day of the danger which is before us. Loved one, art thou waiting till to-morrow? You may never see its light come for to-morrow you may be called into eternity. Don't mind, my friend, what the world may say, the world cannot save you when death got off to. And as you may see dear comes to take you. The funeral took place on Feb. 24; the service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Davis. A large crowd attended the funeral to pay their last respects to a dear friend. Alfred Andrews was loved by all who knew him and will be missed by his many friends. He leaves to mourn a mother, brother, uncle and aunt, and I pray to God that He will comfort them in their hours of sorrow and sadness, and may they look to Jesus the one that give joy and gladness in hours of darkness.

Mother dry your eyes from weeping. Brother do not be downcast. For we have to meet our loved one. When our stormy voyage is past.

Uncle cast away your grieving. For you know we all must die. And we pray to meet dear Alfred. Over yonder bye and bye.

Auntie cast away thy sorrow. For poor Alfred he is gone. Let us bow down to our Saviour. And gladly say "Thy will be done."

I am, faithfully yours,
CHARLES C. VINCENT.

AT REST

Yesterday afternoon the mortal remains of John Patrick Curtin, Esq., were laid to rest in the family plot in Invidere Cemetery. The funeral was large and representative, testifying to the esteem and respect in which the deceased gentleman was held. The officers of the Benevolent Irish Society acted as a guard of honor for the casket and many of "The Elks" of which deceased was a member were in attendance in the cortege.

At the Cathedral prayers for the dead were recited by Rt. Rev. Mgr. McDermott, V.G., the final blessing of Holy Mother Church was pronounced over the body of one of her most faithful and devoted children. He was consigned to its temporary resting place to await a glorious awakening.

St. John's has lost one of its most prominent and respected citizens; his family a devoted and loving husband, father and brother, the Catholic Church a worthy child and our Island Home a son of whom she may be proud; each poorer because John Curtin is dead but he himself is truly rich for by his good and noble deeds he has an eternal reward in the kingdom of God.—R.I.P.

Union Cause Is Bright

All the members of the Northern Districts have arrived during the past week and we give them a hearty welcome. They bring the most encouraging news of the progress of the F. P. U. The Councils generally have been adding to their membership at each meeting, and the enthusiasm for the Union cause has not abated one iota. Their confidence in Mr. Coaker is as strong as ever, and were an election held to-morrow there would be an increased vote for the Government candidates. The Northern people are as solid as a rock in backing their representatives. They are always in touch with them and realize that all that is humanly possible is being done for their interests. If anyone imagines that the Coaker cause has suffered in any shape or form, he can depend upon it that he is quite astray. The North will stand by its members everytime, as it knows that in Mr. Coaker and the Union are strong bulwarks in time of need.

Mr. W. B. Jennings Nails The "Sun's" Falsehoods.

William Temple Wanted To Join The F. P. U. Last Year, But - - - !

THE FOLLOWING LETTER APPEARS IN THE 'DAILY NEWS' THIS MORNING, BEING THE TRENCHANT REPLY OF MR. W. B. JENNINGS, M.H.A., TO THE COMMENTS OF THE 'TWILLINGATE SUN' AND THE 'DAILY NEWS' REGARDING THE MEETING HELD IN TWILLINGATE RECENTLY.

Editor Daily News:

Dear Sir,—I should have treated your extract from the 'Twillingate Sun,' and editorial comment thereon in your issue of 28th inst., with silent contempt, but some of the charges made are so incorrect and the whole report so absolutely one-sided that I somewhat reluctantly take this opportunity to refute some of the statements contained therein.

Mr. Samson and myself visited Twillingate on March 10th. After our arrival, at the desire of a great number of our constituents there, we held a public meeting in the Alexandra Hall. As we had to adjourn to the F.P.U. Hall immediately after to deal with other matters, it was impossible for us to delay after the public meeting was over, particularly as I had to leave Twillingate the next morning. The chairman was not authorized to call for questions as we had no time at our disposal to answer them. The charge that I stated things were in a panic condition in 1919, is absolutely incorrect. I did state that the prices of fish were unsettled and that we were confronted with this from one end of the district to the other and even then, except to the "stone-dead" the rumors of reaction were audible. At that date the highest prices given in the district were $10.00 for No. 1 shore and $8.00 for No. 1 Labrador.

Of course the easiest thing possible for a Government returned with a substantial majority was to have followed the precedents set by former Governments and sat down without making an attempt to do anything, but because they did attempt to deal with an important question, which many of their critics would have been too cowardly to deal with, they have been subjected to the worst form of hostile criticism by the public press, in which the Twillingate Sun has taken a leading part. This criticism, I claim, being destructive, perhaps for the very good reason that the parties responsible were not capable of making any constructive criticism. I think those who know me best and the men who were present at the meeting at Twillingate that Friday night are the best judges of whether I willingly appealed to the Editor of the Sun to spare us in his report. It would be the last course which I would take to which any man much less the Editor of the Sun. If either Mr. Samson or myself had any fear of that individual we would not have visited Twillingate at that particular time, and certainly would not have risked a public meeting, but because I had reason to know that the Sun's criticism was wont to be very much one-sided, I did at the close of my address (seeing him so busy scribbling) ask him to give us a fair and above board report. It seems that I was entirely mistaken in asking for decent treatment, the old saying still holds good "You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear." I am quite satisfied to leave the subject of my statements in that meeting to the judgment of the intelligent men of Twillingate who were present at the meeting and heard all that was said, and have not to depend on a garbled one-sided report such as the Sun presents. It is a standing joke among the people there to find extracts from that paper published in the Opposition press of St. John's and headed "As the North sees it." It is certainly straining a point to call the Editor of the Sun a neutral in politics. Since I have any knowledge of him he has been a hard-shell Tory and nothing else, unless he was considering a change of front when about a year ago he applied for membership in the F.P.U., but the Twillingate Council not appreciating this particular acquisition to their ranks promptly blackballed him.

It was a strange coincidence that just about that time he applied for the printing of the synopsis of the debates of the House. It is also significant that on referring this question to a number of his fellow townsmen they gave an emphatic refusal. I beg to remind you that although the Opposition did make some objection to the Regulations during the first stages of the debate, with the exception of one member of that body, these objections disappeared and if anyone can judge by the "spoken word" during the last stages of the debate, they were entirely in favor of the Regulations, and could adduce no arguments in favor of another course.

How the 'News' can come to the conclusion that the extract quoted from the Sun was an able reply not hearing these addresses, I am unable to understand, but I venture to state that if an "able reply" requires to be composed of absolutely biased, misleading, and incorrect statements, (and the man who wrote the article knew it as well as the one who reprinted it) then the Twillingate Sun in this article has met all the conditions.

I am not dealing with one half of the statements made by the Editor of the Sun—not because they cannot be refuted but for lack of time.

PLANE CARRIES FIRST PASSENGER

The small plane operating from Botwood made a successful flight from her base to Fogo yesterday afternoon, making a successful landing at the latter place. The plane left Botwood at 3.20 p.m. and alighted at Fogo at 3.49 p.m. and after discharging mails, etc., she left again a few minutes later taking as a passenger Mr. Ambrose Payne. The trip back was made in an hour and three quarters. The plane was to have made a flight out over the ice this morning but weather conditions were not satisfactory. Mr. Cotton reported a South West gale with low clouds, making a flight impossible, but it was hoped that a trip over the ice was possible this afternoon.

PORTIA'S CAPTAIN GETS PRAISED

(To the Editor.) Dear Sir,—Permit me through the columns of your paper to extend to the Captain and crew of the S.S. Portia our most sincere thanks and deep appreciation of the manner in which they acted during the trying time when the good ship was stranded at the entrance to St. Jacques from Saturday to Monday last.

The ship went ashore there during the night and in the midst of one of the worst storms of wind and snow that has been known here for several years. Lighthouses were of no avail in such weather conditions, but it is quite possible that had a fog alarm on St. Jacques Island the ship could have safely made port. This is a condition that we hope our energetic and progressive Government will seek to remedy as soon as possible. During the time the ship was on the rocks the Captain was untiring in his efforts to save the ship, and yet considerate of the interest and welfare of the owners of freight on board. Though some advocated the hasty discharge of cargo by throwing it overboard thus causing heavy losses to the respective owners, the Captain wisely secured assistance and landed the major portion of the freight with comparatively little damage.

There was no confusion, but everything was done with a coolness and regularity that reflects the greatest credit on the Captain and the whole ship's company afore mentioned. Words fail to express the deep gratitude that is felt here towards the gallant Captain who for forty-eight

SECTARIANISM

What Must Be the Result If This Be Allowed To Continue?

There are many who have not yet seen the exposures which were made recently of the Cashin campaign in Harbor Main Election, and the despicable way in which the election was won, on the eve of Polling Day. In order that all may have a chance to peruse the evidence of this strife-breeding campaign, the stuff is reprinted.

The following are some of the disgusting expressions used in the campaign waged by the Opposition in the Harbor Main Election:

Who are you going to vote for, boys? Not the Orangemen of the South Shore who got whiskers that you want a shovel to get the icicles out of them.

Squires is now inside the four walls of an Orange Lodge somewhere near Kelligrews, and you would want to know the password before you could see in.

I was born in Harbor Main (says one of the Cashin men). My mother was born in Bay Roberts. I remember one time and I think you will understand what I refer to later on, my mother, with a shawl around her head, was looking through her bedroom window as the Orangemen of Bay Roberts had their guns piked to come to the Head of the Bay, but it was fear of you and our progenitors that kept the Orangemen back.

Take care they don't come to force you like they did before—you know what I mean (meaning the '61 incident).

Teach your children and make them lip, as they go to their cots tonight, in the name of God, to pray that Sir Michael Cashin may be victorious in this fight.

Tomorrow is the Twelfth of March. If it were the Twelfth of July you know what they would do.

I would remind you of the faith which you as Catholics hold so dear. Tomorrow you will go to mark your Cross. You know what the Cross means. It is the emblem of our faith. What is the emblem of R. A. Squires' faith? What does he know of the Cross? Tomorrow is the Twelfth of March. That is our Twelfth, their's is the 12th of July.

Sealing Plane Makes Trip to Fogo Island

(Special to the Advocate) GRAND FALLS, March 29.—The airplane made a successful flight yesterday afternoon, proceeding to Fogo, where a safe landing was made on harbor ice. It returned to Botwood at 7 p.m. bringing as passenger Capt. Ambrose Payne of Fogo. I understand everything worked satisfactorily during the journey and believe attempt will be made today to discover the whereabouts of the main patch. Capt. Nat Kean who made the trip yesterday speaks in glowing terms of the operators of the plane and is very optimistic of ultimate success in locating seal herds.

NOURISHING AND APPETISING

Good home made bread is the most palatable, wholesome and nourishing food in the world. It is far more economical than any other staple food. If people would eat less meat and other heavy foods they would feel better and help to keep down the cost of living. Bread made in the home with Royal Yeast Cakes is more nourishing and appetizing than any other. Nothing healthier for children and grown ups.

Scientists have discovered that yeast possesses remarkable curative powers due to its richness in vitamins—that by its use the blood is purified and enriched, and the resistive power of the body to disease greatly enhanced. Soak a cake of Royal Yeast for half an hour in a cup of luke-warm water with one teaspoon sugar. Then stir well and strain once or twice through muslin and drink the liquid. BETTER results will be obtained by allowing it to soak over night and drinking half an hour before breakfast. Repeat as often as desired. Send name and address for free booklet entitled "Royal Yeast for Better Health."

The Woes of

"I am afraid I shall have to throw away this bath sponge, it is so very dirty," remarked Mrs. Newlywed.

Wash it occasionally in warm water to which a little tartaric acid is added. After rinse in clear water," said Mrs. Neighbor.

The Sickbed Lady

When you carry a tray into the room occupied by an invalid, says Nurse, you should not only have the food prepared to look refreshing and appetizing, but you should use all care to see that the tray is covered with a dainty doily, with clean napkin and with the china the very best the house can afford. Very often an invalid is induced in this way to eat if she feels she is honored with a choice bit of linen. Of course there is danger that these little special articles may become fruit stained, but have no fear, for they can be treated in the following manner without injury to the fabric.

Put a tablespoon of sulphur on a plate and sprinkle a few drops of alcohol, pure of denatured, on it. Place over this a tin funnel with the small end up. Now wet the stained linen with cold water and, after touching a lighted match to the alcohol, hold the spot of stain over the opening of the funnel. The ascending sulphur fumes will perform their duty in a very short time. Nurse says she has never had but one occasion when a second application was necessary.

Proper Manners

"I met a young man while on a visit in another town. Should I write him upon my return home or wait for him to take the first steps at continuing the acquaintance?" asked Edith.

"If the young man entertained you while on your visit it is proper for you to write a note of thanks after you return home. If he wishes to correspond you will then hear of it," said her aunt.

Boys and Girls

If there is one thing implanted more firmly in a boy than any other it is the desire to be with the girl he particularly likes. Parents, many of them, respect this feeling on the part of their son, but they often hesitate to give the youth free rein in the matter. When a boy is required to pay attentions to a girl he doesn't like he is rebellious, whether he shows it or not.

This is not a matter to be controlled by advice or exhortation. There is a great danger in allowing a boy to find his own girl friends without any guidance from you, but there are different ways of guiding him. One way is for the parents to determine the circle of the boy's friends without letting him know that a selection is being made.

Of course the parent cannot tell him which one in this particular group to select for his own special attention, but a parent can provide for the boy's need by giving him an opportunity of selection in a group large enough to include boys and girls of different traits and interests.

STEER BROTHERSPROUD OF THE UNION.

(To the Editor.)

Dear Sir,—Just a few lines to your worthy paper as I feel I cannot resist any longer dropping you something.

Well, Sir, I may say I am proud of our Union, proud of Hon. W. F. Coaker, proud of the Government, proud of Mr. W. B. Jennings and other members. I believe we have the right men to handle the business of the country. I am glad to see of Mr. Coaker away to the fish markets and hope he will have a safe return. I believe, Sir, that the Fish Regulations have been a great blessing, and more so if it had not been for the opposition. But Right will prevail and with strong men like Mr. Coaker the Ship of State will be brought safely through. I pray the Almighty will guide them all. Wishing the Advocate and the Union all success.

Yours truly,

PROUD OF THE UNION.

The Union Fire Bright.
Badger's Quay Loyal To The Core For Coaker.*Opposition Will Never Win.

(To the Editor.)

Dear Sir,—As time rolls by and passes from our notice, so do things of no little importance. Many are the jeers and I may say pitfalls, thrown against Coaker and the F.P.U., and the Regulations by the opposition, upon whom the light has been thrown, directly as well as indirectly. These rumors take no effect whatever on our Union here; it only makes the fire burn more brightly because it goes without saying, nothing pierces the heart more than being told of one's wrong doing, and to-day Coaker and the F.P.U. never fails to show forth the evil, past present, and what would come in the future if might would prevail against right. We must not listen to any opposition cries, as they are ever on the alert to discover any little dent Coaker, the man scorned by the Tory rags, fought tooth and nail to safeguard the country's best wealth; and still pressing forward in order to let the people know the present conditions abroad and provide for the future. Can history repeat it in the past? I think not. Yet if a black cloud arises the cry goes forth "Where is Coaker now?" Consider readers before speaking too rashly. Has Coaker power to stop the sun from shining, and has he the powers to rule the destinies of the world from whence Newfoundland has to get the food she consumes? Think over matters and call to mind the false tales being told about Coaker and all proven to be utterly false. In conclusion we don't fail to have our meetings regularly and very lively to support Coaker. Our last meeting we had an initiation which goes to show we are come to stay. Hoping God will spare Mr. Coaker on his trip and bring him safely home again.

I remain,

J. J. SPURRELL,
Chairman.

SEALING NEWS.

GOOD WORK YESTERDAY.

CATCH TO DATE ESTIMATED 52,000

Last night's messages from the northern sealing fleet are most encouraging and with favorable weather there is every hope of the entire northern fleet securing good trips. The opinion of experienced sealers is that the steamers are in the main patch of whitecoats, and judging the different positions of the ships the herd is a large one. The Eagle, Neptune and Thetis which ships were 30 miles north of the position of the Diana and Sagona on Sunday were the only ones of the fleet not among the seals yesterday morning. The Thetis, however, reached the patch at 2 p.m. and before dark her crew killed and banded 2,000. The Neptune reported that she would be among the whitecoats by 9 p.m. and the Eagle reported the Terra Nova, Sagona, Seal Diana and Ranger in sight at 7 p.m. All three should be in good positions to-day, and if the seals are as plentiful as they are supposed to be their crews should do well. With regard to the Diana and Sagona it is generally believed that both these steamers struck the whitecoats on Saturday last but Captains Parsons and Kneel did not wire their owners until such time as they felt sure they were in the main herd. Capt. Kneel of the Seal did not report the day's work in last evening's message, but her owners believe that the crew killed between 5,000 and 6,000. Yesterday's and last night's messages were as follows:

To Reid Co.
Sagona—(yesterday a.m.)—Battle now raging; every man doing his duty.

Sagona (Last night)—All well.

To Job Bros.
Thetis—Reached seals at 3 o'clock to-day; crew killed and banded 2,000; prospects good; Terra Nova, Diana, Sagona, Neptune, Eagle, Seal in sight; all well.

Neptune—Expect to reach seals at 9 o'clock to-night; all well.

To Bowring Bros.
Terra Nova—Crew have killed and banded 7,000 to-day; on board and stowed down 2,000; prospects good.

Ranger—Crew have killed and banded 3,500 large seals to-day; every thing working well.

Eagle—Terra Nova, Ranger, Sagona, Seal and Diana in sight.

Baine Johnston & Co.
Seal—In good patch; prospects very good; all well.

To Jns. Baird, Ltd.
Diana—Crew killed and banded 6,000 to-day; all well.

MRS. O. E. SMITH FEARED SHE HAD HEART TROUBLE

Toronto Woman Says All Her Troubles Have Disappeared Since Taking Tanlac.

"Before I had taken half a bottle of Tanlac I began to straighten right up, and now I feel just fine," said Mrs. O. E. Smith, 159 Yarmouth Road, Toronto, Ont., recently.

"I was told that I had high blood pressure, but whatever my troubles were, they began to disappear when I got Tanlac, and now I haven't a trace of any of them. For one thing, I suffered from indigestion something awful. After eating the gas from my undigested food would press into my chest until it made my heart flutter frightfully, and at times I actually thought it would stop beating. My head ached terribly at times, and I got so dizzy I couldn't stand up. My kidneys also bothered me, and my back and legs hurt constantly. My legs hurt worst while lying down, and nights I couldn't sleep any to speak of, so that I always felt tired and worn out."

"But all my troubles are gone now, my indigestion is just perfect, and I never have a headache or dizzy spell any more. Even those pains have disappeared from my back and legs, and I'm so thankful for my good health I just want to praise Tanlac all the time."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, in Musgrave Harbor by T. W. Abbott, in Badger's Quay by John T. Hackett, in New Perlican by E. J. Green, in Point aux Gauls by Edgar Hillier, in Dildo by Samuel J. Pretty, in Glovertown by Daniel Burton, in Old Perlican by Moses Bursey, in Lewis port by Uriah Peck, in Holyrood by William Coady, in Morton's Harbor by A. W. Brett, in St. Brendan's by Wm. Hynes, in Bonne Bay by Butte Bros., in Brent's Cove by Jeremiah A. Sullivan, in Port Anson by Warrick W. Wellman.

In connection with the reorganizing of the Methodist Guards Brigade, it is proposed that the institution shall take the form of a Club or Association which will have rooms for the entertainment of the members. A Sociable in aid of the funds will be held next month, and in a short while plans will be made to put the proposition before the Methodist young men of the city.

Accompanying this letter is a parcel containing a loaf of bread baked from "Windsor Patent" flour for the Baking Competition.

Owing to the irregular mail facilities at this time of year I am sending it early so that it may reach you in good time for April 7th. Will you please have it forwarded to Carboncar for me.

It was only recently I tried "Windsor Patent" for the first time, and I find it easily excels all the other brands I have used during the past 10 years. It makes a wonderful batch of bread.

BOATS BEING WRECKED

During the winter months fishermen and others kept their boats up on the fore shore of the South Side above the Long Bridge. Of late they have begun to repair them for the seasons voyage and a number of them within the past few days find that the boats have been tampered with, and in several instances considerably damaged. Some of the boats have been prepared for the reception of motors, and the particular places in which these were installed have been badly wrecked, in some cases destroyed. This is not alone annoying but expensive for the owners who believe thoughtless boys are the perpetrators of this wanton destruction. The presence of a policeman on the upper part of the South Side, even though his visits might be few would have the effect of stopping this kind of conduct.

C.L.B. BAND CONCERT BIG SUCCESS

The C.L.B. Band Easter Concert was held in the Methodist College Hall last night and was largely attended. Amongst these present were His Excellency the Governor and Lady Harris, the Lord Bishop and Mrs. White, the Prime Minister, Hon. R. A. Squires, K.C., Lt. Col. Goodridge and officers of the brigade, as well as many other prominent citizens. The Band, under the able direction of Capt. A. Morris, was never heard to better advantage their various selections being excellently rendered, reflecting great credit on their talented bandmaster and on the Brigade in general. The Band was assisted by Misses A. Laidley, M. Mitchell, M. Keegan, Elsie Tait and Mrs. F. J. King, Messrs. A. Williams, F. Cornick, W. L. Woods, W. A. Tucker, and Karl Trappnell, whose ability on the concert platform is so well known and their different numbers were well received and added considerably to the evening's entertainment. The concert was in every way a big success, and a considerable sum was realized for Brigade funds.

OBITUARY

JOHN W. WITHERS.

Deep regret is expressed throughout the city for the demise of the venerable and esteemed Mr. John W. Withers whose soul passed to its eternal reward last evening after an illness extending over several months.

The late Mr. Withers was representative, nay typical, of a type of Newfoundland now growing rare, but the fruit of whose efforts in the advancement of the interests of Church and State will long remain as a monument of past history and enterprise and an incentive to generations of the future. Deceased had considerably outlived the allotted span and in return for the fullness of years he gave a maximum of service to the land of his birth and in whatever direction he used the talents which were superabundantly his, the result was invariably and eminently satisfactory. His long services as first clerk in the Colonial Secretary's office, a position analogous to that now known as the Deputy Minister, were of enormous value. In those now far off days Mr. Withers' counsel was largely availed of. A close student of current events and past history his was an unrivalled knowledge, and his advice was always safe and sane and reasoned. In 1859 or thereabouts on the death of his aged father, he became Queen's Printer, to which office he brought additional dignity, by his literary ability and unflinching courtesy.

The tenure of his office as Municipal Commissioner was fruitful of improvement in civic government in more than one important instance and Mr. Withers was in no small measure responsible for the inauguration of many schemes the following out of which was admittedly beneficial in so far as our civic administration, was concerned. True his views were often at variance with those of his associates but while never attempting to force his views upon those who did not see eye to eye with him, he nevertheless held strongly to his convictions and usually his persistence was vindicated by the ultimate outcome.

In church work Mr. Withers held a foremost place. For many years he was the Cathedral organist; and also a member of the Executive of the Diocesan Synod of Newfoundland, a position which he held at the time of his decease. He was also a director of the Church of England College.

"And thus he bore without abuse The grand old name of gentleman."

Mr. Withers is survived by a widow, sister of Messrs. Kennie of this city, a daughter, wife of Lieut. Commander Colville, D.S.O., R.N., and grandchildren, all of whom were at his bedside when the end came. To his relatives the Advocate tenders sincere sympathy.

PHILIP HICKS.

There passed peacefully away at his home at Carmanville on the 19th inst. a well known citizen in the person of Philip Hicks. Born at Bonaville in the year 1845 he saw seventy six years of the shifting scenes of life in Newfoundland. He was one of seven brothers who were the Pioneers of Carmanville and carved out homes for themselves and their families there forty five years ago. A descendant of an old Devonshire family he was a true sailor and spent the greater part of his life as master of a vessel in carrying on the Labrador and Bank fisheries. He was a respected citizen, unselfish and generous and was a strong factor in shaping life at Carmanville in the early days. He leaves to mourn him two brothers, two sons and one son at Grand Falls besides a large circle of relatives and friends.

HELD UP BY MASKED AND ARMED MEN

HERRING NECK MAN WAS RELIEVED OF $200 EARLY THIS MORNING.

Held up by two masked and armed men at the head of Cochrane St. at 2 o'clock this morning, William Miles, formerly of Herring Neck, but now residing in the City was forced to part with $200 in cash at the end of a gun. Miles was returning to his boarding house on Field St. after attending a dance at St. Joseph's Hall, Plymouth Rd., and had just seen a young lady to her home on Forest Rd. He was going west by way of Military Rd. when he encountered the "gentlemen of the Road" with the afore mentioned result. When Miles was first ordered to put his hands up he was inclined to take the matter as a joke but when he found himself looking into the muzzle of a revolver the humor sort of oozed out of the situation and he quickly elevated his hands while the highway men went thru his clothes and took out between himself his wallet, his ring and a society emblem which he wore on his coat, after which they ordered the victim to beat it. This he did and went straight to the Police Station, where he told his story to the guard, giving a description of the men who had held him up.

The affair has several interesting aspects from the police point of view and they are giving the matter their closest attention. One feature of the case which calls for more than ordinary interest is the question whether the hold-up men knew that Miles had the tidy roll they found on him or whether he was just a chance victim. The former theory is the more favored one because a man with $200 in his clothes going to a dance is such a rare avis that there could seem to be not more than a chance in a hundred of making such a catch hap-hazard. Mr. Miles was able to give a pretty good description of his waylayers but he could not see their faces, and the Police are confident that they will land their men.

CLEARING TREPASSEY BRANCH

Yesterday at 11 o'clock rotary No. 3, the new engine left here to dig up the Trepassy Branch. A large number of men left and work was begun at Waterford Bridge on this branch of the railway immense drifts piled up as a result of the storms of mid-winter and the latter part of February when a succession of the most blizzards recorded for many years occurred. Yesterday afternoon good progress had been made and by evening the men were up to Fourth Pond. Much ice is to be encountered, but with the present soft weather it is hoped to have the whole line opened up by the end of the week. Good work is being done on the Bay de Verde Branch of the railway and in a day or so the line will be opened for traffic to its entire extent from Carboncar to Bay de Verde.
